

Do you want to PERFORM at the COLLEGE level? We can help you get there!

The Counting Stars Worldwide™ evaluation program doesn't just test your physical abilities, but evaluates you in four different areas so you can find the college that best matches your talent, passions and goals.

Sign up for a Counting Stars Worldwide event near you, and we will:

- Provide an in-depth, thorough, objective and honest talent evaluation
- Give professional feedback on your strengths and weaknesses, and provide direction on how to improve
- Match your talent evaluation and academic abilities to colleges that are right for your goals

Counting Stars Worldwide's unique, in-depth evaluation program includes tactical and technical analysis specific to your sport or performing arts category. In addition, the program measures applicable academic and physical abilities. Counting Stars Worldwide helps you focus your college search on the institutions that are the right fit for your goals.

Many high school students and their parents don't have access to reliable, unbiased information on the talent level required to play sports at a Division I, Division II, Division III, NAIA or Community College level. The same is true for students looking to dance and perform at a conservatory style professional training college.

Counting Stars Worldwide events include:

- A full day of game play or dance auditions that will highlight your skills
- Breakouts for testing of your technical proficiency
- Physical performance testing using state of the art laser timers
- Athletic mindset assessment and personalized recommended training to compete at the college level

Our team are experts in their field and we operate with a student-first approach – your college choice is about who you are, not just what you can do. We listen to your goals and help you understand what you need to do in order to reach those goals. Our mission is to help you find the ideal college experience for you – not only in your sport or performing art, but socially as well.

Counting Stars Worldwide is on a mission to help students find just the right college to help them realize their playing and performing dreams.
